

THREE LOST FIVE SAVED

First Definite News of Engle Men at Hanna
Received Yesterday

Trinidad, Colo., April 1.—(Special)

According to a dispatch received at Engleville yesterday morning from Mrs. Amelia Jacobs who is now at Hanna, Wyoming, Alex. Jacobs Jr., Sam Jacobs, Sam Cundy, Felix Cundy and Tom Cundy, who it was feared had lost their lives in the explosions in the ill-fated Union Pacific Mine No. 1 Saturday, are safe. Jack Rimmer, John Cookson and Everett Pennant, all of Engleville, were victims of the first explosion.

The work of recovering the fifty-four bodies which are still in mine No. 1 has begun. Scores of men are swarming about the east slope entrance, clearing away the loose earth and digging out the shattered timbers. As soon as the east slope is partially clear the rescue party will proceed, bratticing the slope in front of them as they go. All the entries will be sealed up, and by carrying the brattice in front of them the danger of another explosion will be removed. No smoke was issuing from the mine this morning, and there was no noticeable rise in the temperature of the air from underground. All indications point to a speedy recovery of the bodies of the men who are still in the mine.

Three shifts of men were put to work this morning, and inside of a week all the bodies which are in the main slope may be rescued. It is known that there are fifteen or twenty bodies just behind the tons of earth and debris which now choke the east slope of the mine. These are the men who are bringing the bodies of Gus Ramie and Jack Rimmer to the top. The explosion caught them when they were almost in sight of the men on the outside.

JEALOUS NEGRO SHOOT WIFE AS SHE PLAYS PIANO

Denver, Colo., March 30.—While a number of colored people were enjoying themselves at a party held at 2336 Market street shortly after 3 o'clock this morning, with Mrs. Henry Goodrich at the piano, Henry Goodrich, with hatred in his heart, entered the room, jerked a gun from his pocket and with a curse on his lips, shot her in the back of the head. He then ran through the house in search of the man whom he was jealous of, but not finding him, made his escape.

Police headquarters were notified and detectives were rushed to the house. Police Surgeon Ackley pronounced the woman's condition precarious and ordered her removed to the county hospital. She is gradually improving.

Under the orders of Police Sergeant Sturges, the members of the party were taken to jail, where they were held as witnesses. Goodrich evaded Officer Steam, who later caught him in a barber shop at 2047 Larimer street, where he was formerly employed. He was charged with assault to kill. The motive for the shooting is said to be the wife's refusal to return to Goodrich. They were divorced several months ago.

CONGRESS FAVORS BUREAU OF MINES

Washington, March 31.—The proposed establishment in the department of interior of a bureau of mines and mining was unanimously but unofficially concurred in today by the house committee on mines and mining, and it is understood that within a week or two the sub-committee, to which has been referred several bills to establish such a bureau, will draft a bill to accomplish that purpose and report it favorably to the general committee. The full committee was addressed on the subject by former United States Senator William M. Stewart of Nevada, who favored the creation of such a bureau in the interior department rather than in the department of commerce and labor, because of the natural and necessary connection it would have with the geological survey.

Light Weight and Battling Nelson in Fierce
Bout at Frisco

Attell had the best of the match and several times had the Norwegian going but was severely punished. The match started fast from the start and Nelson landed heavily in the opening round, drawing first blood. Attell's speed and cleverness told before the ninth round and he had easily the best of it on points.

In the ninth round he sent his opponent to the ropes just as the gong sounded. The bout was pulled off in the Coliseum before one of the largest crowds of sports ever assembled in the city. Eddie Smith of Oakland and the referee gave general satisfaction.

"BABOON BITES WOMAN" CONEY ISLAND REPORT

New York, March 31.—Coney Island got its first real sensation of the forthcoming season of press agents when a story went around to the effect that a woman—the wife of a policeman—had been bitten to death by a newly imported baboon. American reporters who carefully investigated the weird tale discovered that the animal show publicity bureau is already in full cry. According to the myth promoter, an animal showman gave one of thirty recently arrived baboons to Policeman James Brennan, who in turn presented it to Policeman Gisser, living on West Thirty-third street.

In Gisser's absence, so the report went, the baboon almost wrecked the house and tore Mrs. Gisser frightfully. Then it was shot, but no dead baboon had been buried by the Coney Health Department up to a late hour last night, and Mrs. Gisser said that all the disorder in the house had been caused by the early spring cleaning.

FANCY HOSIERY SHATTERS CONEY ISLAND ROMANCE

New York, March 31.—Because her husband was so jealous that he would not let her wear fancy hosiery or corsets, pretty little Mrs. Hattie Fuller Dupont, 44 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, had him arrested for alleged assault and abandonment, has sued him for absolute divorce, and has sued her wealthy father-in-law, John Taylor Dupont, Sr., for damages for $25,000.

All this trouble is a sequel to a romance that started at Coney Island. While Hattie Fuller, 16 years old, was in bathing she met John Tyler Dupont, Jr., who was one year older than she. On Dec. 30, 1907, the couple were secretly married by a Jersey City clergyman.

The young plaintiff said: "I bought two pairs of pretty silk stockings. When my husband returned home he told me that I must not wear them, and he took them away with him. When I wore corsets my figure was improved. This made my husband angry, for he said that every man on the street would look at me when I passed."

"My father-in-law, John Tyler Dupont, Sr., who for a time was very friendly toward me, has now turned against me. I have instituted proceedings for $25,000 damages."

PLAY POKER FOR GIRL; ONE IS SLAIN

Columbia, Miss., March 31.—Miss Eunice Spencer, 20 years old, whose hand in marriage was sought by many young men in this town, is being held today a prisoner, having shot and killed one of her suitors in one of the most remarkable of love tragedies.

Charles Wesley and P. F. Coombs were two of the most favored ones. They were bitter rivals, and had practically decided to fight a duel for the girl's hand, when she interfered and suggested another way out of the love tangle.

"Now, you boys play a game of poker; play it fair in my presence, and I'll promise to wed the winner," was the girl's advice.

Both men agreed and started to play the game in the young woman's home.

Five hands were agreed upon, the girl to be referee. Wesley won the first two and the third and fourth went to Coombs. In the fifth pot Coombs was charged by Wesley with having cheated. A desperate struggle ensued, and Coombs was down on the floor with a knife in the hands of Wesley at his throat, when Miss Spencer shot Wesley through the breast with a Winchester rifle she seized from a cabinet. The man died in a few moments.

Miss Spencer who is a girl of rare attainments and great charm, had for months been extremely friendly with Charles Wesley and P. F. Coombs, both well-to-do planters.

Miss Spencer lived the life of a bachelor girl, and her unconventional habits often had startled the village. She was known as an original entertainer. She had favored both Wesley and Coombs, who were by no means backward in accepting her hospitality.

PASTOR BERATED HUSBAND FOR ABUSING DEAD WIFE

Reading, Pa., March 31.—Rev. Marvin H. Stettler, one of the best known clergymen in the Pennsylvania Lutheran ministry, was arrested this afternoon on the charge of criminal libel as preferred by Jeremiah Werner of Mohrsville.

This is the sequel to the funeral of Mrs. Werner, his wife, which took place in St. John's Lutheran church, that borough, last Sunday.

Rev. Stettler preached the funeral sermon, during which he made remarks in the public berating and referring to him as a man with a heart of stone showing no signs of grief.

Mr. Werner alleges that the pastor followed this up with remarks as these: Pointing his finger at him: "This man knocked his wife down so that she fell to the floor, the week before she was taken ill. He did not furnish her with clothing and shoes fit to go to church, and for that reason she did not frequent the house of the Lord as regularly and as often as the other sisters of the congregation. See him as he sits unmoved, with no feeling in the presence of the corpse of his helpmeet."

He concluded by saying that there were other men in the congregation no better. Magistrate Miller issued the warrant for the pastor's arrest, and he gave $500 bail for a hearing on Easter Monday.

Rev. Stettler is pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, this city, and St. John's church, where the funeral sermon was delivered.

Mr. Werner is 25 years of age and his wife was 23. He said today that he wanted the case given the widest publicity and he feels that he was unjustly abused in the presence of fully 500 people.

"His remarks were wholly uncalled for and did me great injustice," said the young man. "I did all that I could for my wife during her illness, as can be testified to by the two physicians and the trained nurse."

"Rev. Stettler Sunday referred to me as a man with a heart of stone and said I showed no sign of grief even while he was berating me. I intend carrying the case to the full extent of the law."

CHARMER WITH ELOPEMENT RECORD BIDS FOR FAME

Milwaukee, Wis., March 31.—Her one of a number of sensational elopements and criminal escapades, Mrs. Margaret Maurer, alias Maggie Henn, alias Maggie Finn, is once again in the toils of the police, charged with robbing the home of Henry Geise, by whom she was employed as housekeeper.

Mrs. Maurer's life has been as full of strenuous action as that of any queen of melodrama.

Mrs. Maurer is clever. She led the police to believe Geise's home was entered and robbed by burglars.

When they changed their belief and came for her she was ready. Mrs. Maurer reached for her pistol in its garter holster. The officers, uncertain as to what the move meant, unless she was going to bring forth the $280 she is accused of stealing from Geise, stood and stared, which would have been unfortunate for them if the hammer of the revolver had not caught in the lace of the woman's skirt. They got busy at that stage and arrested her.

Mrs. Maurer has been the charmer of several young men, no older than some of her six children, but she has been unfortunate in her love affairs. She was robbed of one sweetheart by her own daughter.

The first person to be captivated by her charms was Henry Griebel, 16 years old, whom she started in the butcher business. His father did not approve of the affair and ordered the boy to leave the woman. He did so, taking Mrs. Maurer's 16-year-old daughter to Hot Springs, Ark. The police broke up that elopement.

A short time ago Mrs. Maurer eloped with young Philip Henn, Hartford, Wis., and the two were arrested on a charge of embezzlement. The boy's father settled the case and they were released.

It is hinted that there is another love affair back of the present case.

DRINK SOUR MILK AND LIVE TO BE 107 YEARS OLD

Chicago, March 26.—Samuel Falow, bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church and founder of Christian Psychology—a combination of faith cure and medicine—now in his seventy-third year, believes that men ought to be in their prime at eighty and live to be 120 years old. Here is the explanation he gave tonight: Drink sour milk or pure buttermilk two or three times a day.

Avoid too strenuous living. Go to bed early and get up with the rising sun.

Take plenty of exercise of a kind not associated with your actual employment.

Obedience to the laws of hygiene. Keep a clear conscience.

Love God and be square with your fellow-man.

Drink some more sour milk.

The prelate said: "I am indebted for my vitality to three sources."

1. The Bible.

2. A newly published book by Professor Elie Metchnikoff, a French scientist.

3. Science in general.

Metchnikoff, one of the professors in the Pasteur Institute in Paris, is the greatest exponent in the world of the theories of Darwin. It is his business to hunt up diseases and their remedies. In a new book Metchnikoff points out that the reason men do not live to a great age is because under modern conditions the arteries harden with advancing age, due to deposits of calcareous substances.

"He has discovered that the antidote for this condition is sour milk. The sheathes of the arteries are softened by the milk. The principle, he says, is as sound as the verus theory in hydrophobia, and antitoxia and vaccination for other ailments."

"Metchnikoff declares that sour milk or pure buttermilk should be drunk twice or three times a day."

"He declares that fifty years would be added to the lives of aged persons if they did so. Now in the old testament, just after the flood, the prophet of God said: 'The days of man are three score and ten years.'"

Multiplying that by six gives 120 years, the natural age of man, according to the laws that govern animals of the lower orders.

"Now, with man the multiple is only three and a half—that is, if he reaches maturity at twenty he has lived almost a third of his existence according to the present standard and length of life."

"This is not natural and the reason is that man does not take the proper precautions until too late."

The rules of the average Chicagoan for reaching 120 years are: Late hours, extravagance, worry, intemperance, suppression of virtues and expansion of bad habits.

SOCIETY MAN TO BOX JACK O'BRIEN

Philadelphia, March 25.—Anthony J. Drexel Briddle, society man, track amateur athlete, friend and biographer of Robert Fitzsimmons, once heavyweight champion of the world, and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, will mix mitts in a five-round bout at the Merion Cricket Club Saturday evening of next week. The bout is scheduled as the star event in an athletic evening to be given by the club, which is the most exclusive of the organizations of its character in this vicinity.

Besides hammering as many as twenty husky university men in one day at the training quarters, Briddle fought many a fast if friendly bout with Fitzsimmons himself, and possesses not a little of the skill that glorified that star of pugilism.

Mr. Briddle's interest in pugilism is of course purely amateur. He has for love of the sport aided in the training of many amateurs and not a few professionals, including Fitzsimmons himself.

Today Mr. Briddle denied emphatically that he would try to seek out O'Brien's solar plexus during the bout and spoke in high terms of O'Brien himself. He said they expected to have a pretty good go, and seemed not to remember the size of Philadelphia Jack's chest at all. It was purely for fun he said, and he seemed really to think the fun would be evenly divided. O'Brien said that he would not try for a knockout, either, and that's all he cared to say about the matter. Both men have been good friends for years, and have sparred and trained together reaches maturity at twenty years, often.
